

Literature on the move

Abstract

Literature on the Move departs from the assumption that the Austrian literary field is currently being transnationalised, triggered by globalisation processes that have changed the economic conditions within the field. These new conditions have opened up possibilities for immigrant authors who further the transnationalisation of the field thematically and stylistically. Literature on the Move will use a multidimensional model to analyse the complex interactions between globalisation, structural changes within the literary field and thematic and stylistic positioning of individual authors who have immigrated to Austria in more detail. Historical case studies will serve as a contrastive foil to improve our understanding of the specificity of the current situation.

Keywords:

Immigrant literature; literary field; transnationalisation; sociological approach

Principal Investigator:	Wiebke Sievers
Institution:	Austrian Academy of Sciences
Further collaborators:	Sandra Vlasta (University of Vienna) Christa Stippinger (exil / centre for intercultural art and culture and anti-racism projects) Martina Kamm (Face Migration: Neueste Erkenntnisse zur Migrationslandschaft Schweiz) Murray G. Hall (Gesellschaft für Buchforschung in Österreich)

Status: Completed (01.12.2012 - 31.08.2016) 45 months

Funding volume: EUR 337,500

Further links about the involved persons and regarding the project you can find at https://archiv.wwtf.at/programmes/past_programmes/social_sciences_humanities/SSH11-013